“ Randy, Randy, Randy what can i say. I really miss you and it sucks that i won't hear anymore of your great stories because i loved them. You were one of the good guys, "genuine", nothing fake about you and thats what i loved. I will see you one day again. You were so smart and funny and i miss our talks while we were playing keno. (Send me a sign or some numbers lol). I know you are watching over Holly and i will keep an eye on her too. I think of you often and sometimes think i see you. Miss you my friend. All my love, Debra

“ I'll never forget the night we met. You came into my establishment in Indian, Alaska with your wife, Holly, on Halloween, 2002 or 2003. Holly was in full costume, dressed as a clown. You, Randy, carried on as if it was perfectly natural for her to be dressed like a clown....all casual and relaxed. From that night forward, our three-way friendship grew and grew! I have missed you since you left Alaska, and will miss you more than ever now. You are loved and live on in many hearts. May you find rest in God's precious arms. Until we meet again, my brother.....

I love you!
